HDS is an accredited school recognized by the Gyeonggi Provincial Office of Education. Alongside the Korean national curriculum, students can choose from a variety of alternative courses that match their interests and goals, connecting classroom learning to real-life experiences.

Recently, students in our 12th-grade Life Science class completed a special project while studying metabolism. Rather than simply memorizing concepts, they applied their knowledge of carbohydrates, proteins, fats, and digestion to design a balanced school lunch menu. The project encouraged students to think carefully about both nutrition and taste as they selected each dish.

Our school nutritionist brought their menu plans to life by serving them as an actual school lunch. On the day the meal was served, the teachers had no idea the menu had been designed by the students. As they enjoyed the avocado salad, they commented, "Today's lunch is amazing!"

Then, a special announcement echoed through the cafeteria. This time, in the students' own voices:

"The menu we created during Life Science class is being served for lunch today! Please enjoy your meal and take part in the survey afterward!"

After enjoying the delicious meal, students share their feedback through a survey.

Feedback from the survey was overwhelmingly positive, with comments such as, "The food was delicious" and "I would love to take part in a project like this." More than just a meal, the project gave students a sense of accomplishment as they saw their classroom learning come to life and bring joy to others. What began in the Life Science classroom ultimately filled the school with enthusiasm, laughter, and a renewed excitement for learning.

At Heavenly Dream School, learning goes beyond the classroom. We are committed to helping students apply their knowledge to real life, and we continue to develop creative learning experiences that encourage growth, health, and community.
